

Inspection of Automobiles, Vans, and Light Trucks

All vehicles should be routinely inspected before the start of each workday. For vehicles operated daily by the same driver, some items may only need to be checked weekly, such as oil level and tire air pressure (using a tire gauge). The following is a suggested procedure to inspect a vehicle in a systematic manner. The “See Remarks” box should be checked, for those items needing attention, and details added in the “Remarks” section or on the back of this form. Necessary repairs should be made before the vehicle is used.
